Glossary template with audio component

We have been working on a few projects where a Glossary template would be useful. It would be particularly nice if each item on the the template had the option to provide audio pronunciation as well as links to other templates. I don't think this one is rocket science. Anyone else interested in this?

Sounds interesting -- would it be styled as a glossary in specific, or would it be a template that features audio components for the list items, but allows for a wider interpretation than just glossary in use? There are pros and cons to both approaches.
